

Carrie

Dear Birth Parent,

My name is Carrie and I am so thankful that you have taken the time to learn a little about me. I pray for you daily- for the courage to make this difficult choice, the strength to get through this process, and the wisdom in making your decision.

It is impossible to describe myself in a simple profile book and all the love I have to offer. I hope that in this short glimpse into my life, you are able to see how much your baby will be loved, cherished, nurtured and guided. I promise to love this child with an unconditional love that only my Heavenly Father has shown me.

Thank you again for taking the time to learn more about me and my family. I pray that what you see here touches your heart and is exactly what you desire for a family. Should you chose me, you will be allowing me to start a family and I would be indebted to you eternally.

Carrie

About Me

I am a very outgoing, compassionate, and fun person. As a Registered Nurse and a respiratory therapist, it is my job to not only bring healing and comfort to my patients, but also to their family as well. I enjoy many activities, especially anything outdoors, sports, movies and travel. My passion is to serve the Lord with my whole heart and to follow in the direction He is leading. I have been doing student ministry for two decades now, and I currently volunteer in the high school ministry at my church. I have a blast with my students, going to retreats, hosting small groups, and just being a mentor. When I am not working or involved in the church, I love to spend time with my friends, hanging out at my house (I am currently updating and painting my home), and traveling as much as I can. I also try and visit my family, especially my two nephews and niece whom I love to spoil rotten.

About Carrie

Written by Sally

Carrie and I met at work, as nurses in the Cardiac Intensive Care Unit. I am quite a few years older than Carrie, but we hit it off right away. I respected her as a nurse, even sooner. She makes good decisions, listens to people, and has more sympathy and empathy than most. She's always positive, and her work ethic is awesome. She remains calm, even in difficult situations. All of these traits translate really well into motherhood. I was a single mom, and raised two boys. While I thought it was the best thing ever, it was hard work, and at times it was more than challenging. My faith in the Lord led me through the years, along with my focus on helping my boys grow to be emotionally healthy, respectful men, and strong in their faith. I know Carrie will be following a similar path. I would trust Carrie with my very life, or the life of a loved one. I know Carrie will be the best mom ever!

I strongly believe that Carrie would make an excellent mother because I have had the privilege of serving along-side her in the high school ministry for teenagers at our church. During that time I was able to catch a glimpse of her heart for young people, who she is, and how nurturing and loving she is with students and children. Carrie is a strong woman, supportive person, and a kind-hearted friend who would do an amazing job in her new journey through motherhood.

I have known Carrie my whole life - she is my older sister. That also makes her the aunt of my three children - Caleb (8), Avery (5), and Carter (3 months). My children adore their aunt and look forward to her visits to our house, as well as their one on one visits to her house. She always has fun things planned for them and I always know that when they are with her that they are going to be loved on and have the best time. The only thing that Caleb, Avery, and Carter are missing is a cousin to love on and join in on the fun. If you choose my sister to be the forever mother to your child, just know that they will not only be raised in a home abounding in love, but will also gain a family waiting to welcome him/her with open arms.

My Home

This is my home. I have a 3 bedroom and 2 1/2 bathroom home with plenty of living room and play area. I also have a huge backyard for fire pits, grilling and a hammock for leisure days. I recently bought this home and I love my neighborhood. It is full of diversity and multicultural families. On a warm summer evening, children can be seen playing throughout the neighborhood and people gingerly taking walks or going for a run. I also live near the bike and walking trails. It just so happens I live just across from my church where there is a community center with multiple programs for kids. I also have three cats, Sherlock, Watson, and Moriarty. They are rambunctious, loving cats, and bring me great company.

Family & Friends

I am blessed to come from a very big family. My dad is the oldest of NINE! There are 18 grandchildren, and I think we are up to 22 great grandkids and we now have our first great, great grandchild! It's impossible to get all of us in one picture! My mom is the youngest of 4. While my mom and dad are divorced they get along very well. The relationships have also become even better after my dad accepted the Lord has his Savior a few years ago. My biggest joy is being an aunt. Having my nephews, and niece in my life has change my life. I never thought I could have the capacity to love a human being as much as I love these three.

I'm also surrounded by great friends who are so supportive of me and all my adventures and missions that I do. Many of my friends are my age and have children of their own and we are excited to have future play dates.

Mother's Family -with my mother, step dad, brother in law, my fnephew, and my late grandmother.

These are my cousins. Only 4 are missing of the 18 1st cousins on my dad's side
