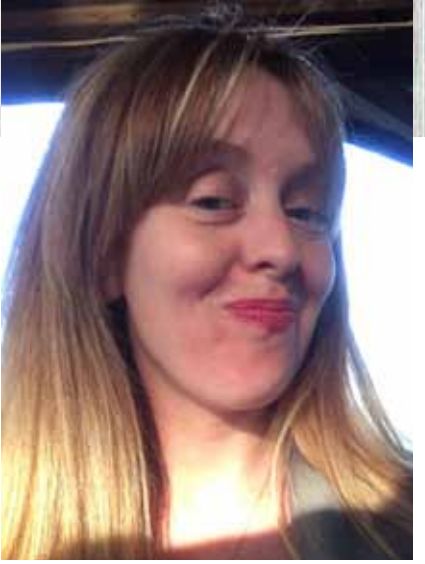
Jason & Abbey



Abbey with long hair

About Abbey

Children have always been a huge part of my life. From babysitting to working as an administrator of a preschool, I have always had a passion for children and dreamt of raising a family of my own. After I graduated from college my professional dreams began in advertising, but it did not take me long to realize that children were my real passion. I have worked with children for several years now and it has reaffirmed my desire to raise a child of my own. One of my hobbies includes styling and cutting my hair as I like to stay on top of the trends Both my husband and I are very devoted to our family and community. In past years, we have been involved in a variety of different charitable organizations including the construction and formation of the dog park that now resides in our local park. We have two nine-year-old dogs, Bowie and Izzy that love going for walks. My years of experience with children have only sharpened my maternal instincts and skills, drawing me closer to my ultimate goal of becoming a mother. After genetic testing and visits with several fertility doctors, Jason and I were faced with a decision. We could either give up on our dream of raising a family or find an alternative route. I may never know what it is like to carry a child or go through a pregnancy, but what I can tell you is that I was born to be amother. From the second that child enters my arms, he or she will enter my heart and that is all I have ever wanted.

About Jason

Jason loves to cook

As the oldest of three and a rather large family, having a child of my own has always been in the back of my mind. After graduating from college and meeting Abbey, we both realized that a family was something we both were serious about. My job as township administer has helped me understand the values of family and community. In my spare time, I enjoy taking photographs of people, nature, and concerts. Having met and become friends with a diverse group of individuals and families, my pursuit to begin a family with Abbey has only increased with these relationships. I know that being a father is a building block in a child's life, and that stability is something that a birthmother is looking for when she decides which family would be best for her child. If there is one thing I can affirm, it is that both Abbey and I have both of this quality. Love is one of the best things I can give as a father, but we are also able to provide a life of possibility and opportunity for this child.

Our Favorites

Jason

Color: Blue

Movie: Ocean's 11

Food: Everything!

Hobby: Photography, swimming, cooking & hiking

Occupation: Township Administrator

Education: Master's In Public Admin

Abbey

Color: Blue

Movie: Overboard

Food: Meatloaf & Mashed potatoes

Hobby: Decorating, reading & watching movies

Occupation: Prekindergarten Teacher & Preschool Administrator

Education: Bachelor of Science

More About Us

Abbey on Jason: I understand that "love at first sight" may be a bit over the top, but that is the best way I can describe my relationship with Jason. We met through a mutual friend who knew we would be perfect for each other and a year later we were married. His sense of humor, intelligence and genuine care for myself and our marriage are all values of his that I admire. With 8 years of marriage under our belts, we have been through a variety of different challenges, but the one constant is his support and dedication to our marriage. Life has dealt us some very interesting hurdles when it comes to starting a family of our own, and Jason has not once given up on us having a child. His experiences and interactions with children have only made me love him more and it is my firm belief that Jason will not only be the best father he can be, but will help me create a family that is based solely on love and protection.

Jason on Abbey: Looking back on my life before I met Abbey, I had a great education and was embarking on a promising career, but I had no partner to share these things with. Then Abbey came into my life and things changed. When I say things changed, what I mean is that things began to make sense. Her outlook on life is positive, her smile is contagious and her ability to love is infectious. As a director and teacher of a preschool, Abbey's daily interactions with children make her who she is. Each one of her students has had an impact on who she is and how she wants to be as a mother. Her ability to constantly nurture, care and protect are all values that not only strengthen our marriage and family, but also shed light on who she will be as a mother and how very lucky that child will be.

Jason and Abbey hiking

Jason kayaking with co-workers

Trip to the Zoo

Abbey's brother

Our Home

We live in a wonderful, family-friendly community. We have lived and grown up in our community for over thirty-five years. There are many children in our neighborhood and we are only minutes away from the local park. The park has a walking trail and children's playground. We live in a ranch home with three bedrooms and 2 ½ baths. We enjoy doing home projects and decorating. We have a fenced in backyard and sidewalks. We have attended the school system and our families live just a few minutes away, there is no better place for us to adopt and raise a child.

Our Family

Our family is one of the most important pieces of our marriage. We both are the oldest out of our siblings and have seen how love and support shape and mold the very basics of parenting. Both of our families are beyond excited to see our marriage grow with the adoption of a child. This child will be the first grandchild for both of our parents and the excitement is overwhelming with the idea of welcoming a new member to our family. Our family is comprised of business owners, retired township employees and homemakers who add excellent value, diversity and experience when it comes to raising a child. Our own mothers and fathers have raised healthy, loving children who have turned into productive and warm members of society, all of whom are eager to meet his or her niece or nephew. While we understand that no family is perfect, we understand that we all have our shortcomings and challenges, but if there is one category our family excels in, it is love. For there has never been a time when unconditional love has been absent or missing. And that is what we are most excited to share with this child.

Jason's extended family

Vacation with close friend

Abbey growing her hair long

Abbey's family

Abbey's co-workers

Family Vacation in New York

Jason at community Christmas tree lighting

Trip to Timberline Lodge in Oregon

Jason family

Hello!

We greatly appreciate you taking the time to consider our profile. Our names are Abbey and Jason and we are currently looking to adopt a child into our lives. Our relationship began through the meeting of a mutual friend and have since been married for 8 years. As a preschool teacher and township administrator, our lives have always revolved around our community, family and friends. We are excited to support a child in his or her interests, as well as teach them the things we know and love about life.

Sincerely,

Jason & Abbey

Why Adoption?

We began trying for a child a few years ago and recently found out that conception of our own would not be possible. We have close friends that have adopted a family of three lovely girls. Watching their adoption experience gave us strong hope and courage. As love has been the solid foundation of who we are as a unit, it is our sincere hope that a birthmother relates to our situation and finds that we are not just suitable parents, but discover our unending promise to give a child a family and forever home.

Cultural Statement:

Our ability to love and raise a child encompasses every race, gender or ethnicity. As a family, we believe that those differences are invisible when it comes to loving, raising and protecting a child. Thank you for your time and consideration. We wish you the best and look forward to meeting you.