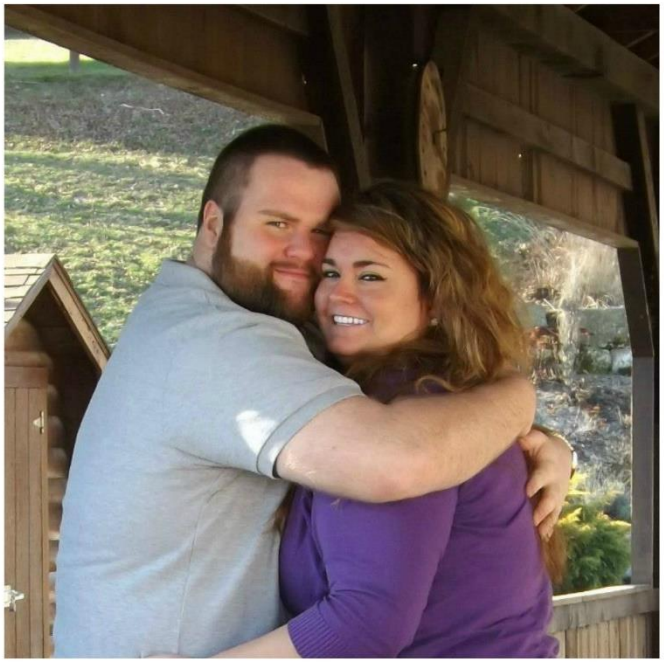
Dear Birthparent,

We can only imagine that choosing to make an adoption plan takes more courage and selflessness than most people will ever be able to understand. We wish that we could wrap you in our arms and help you carry the weight of this decision that is pulling so heavily on your heart. We want you to know that we are thinking of you and keeping you and your story close to our hearts.

From the bottom of our hearts, thank you for taking the time to learn about us and our family. We hope that through these pages you will get to know us a little better and the family we would love to provide.

We hope to create an environment where cultural heritage and where they come from is just as important as where they are going. We promise to always love and care for this child and to honor you in our promises and your vital role in their life. We are so humbled that you have chosen to look at our profile and we hope to have the opportunity to meet you.

Thank You!



Why Adoption?

We both love children and have always wanted to become parents. After struggling with infertility for years, we decided that we would open our home and our hearts to become foster parents. Our journey as foster parents has led us to hope and dream of welcoming a little one into our arms through adoption. We are so excited to begin building our family and to provide a permanent, stable, and loving home. As parents, we promise that this little one's life will be filled with laughter, joy, and love.

Our Story

We met for the first time on a warm summer evening in August. A few weeks before, Caleb had logged in to his online dating profile and noticed that he had a notification, indicating a new message. That message was from Hannah. Just 10 months later, Hannah is walking down the aisle, surrounded by family and friends as Caleb plays and sings a song that he wrote just for Hannah on their special day. Caleb often says to Hannah, "Each day, I love you more than the day before" and six years of marriage later – we still consider each other our best friend. With a newly built home and so many empty bedrooms, we decided together that we would open our home and our hearts to become foster parents after struggling with infertility.

Becoming Foster Parents

We soon welcomed two foster siblings into our family, a 14-month-old girl and a newborn baby boy. The love that has grown in our hearts for our two foster children is beyond words. We have been so blessed to be their foster parents for the last two years, and while our hearts break and are overwhelmed with loss at the thought of them leaving our home to return to their biological parents, we have been honored to help them along their journey and to play a part in their lives while they needed a safe place to call home.

Hopeful to become Parents

We are so excited to be parents one day. We Promise to kiss the scraped knees and hold the broken hearts. We promise to teach empathy and compassion for others. We promise trips to Disney World, the Ocean, and to explore new places together. We promise camp-outs in the backyard and pillow forts in the family room. We promise to cheer them on at the school plays and the football games and the dance and music lessons. Above all, we promise to love through the good days and the bad days and to give them all the tools and opportunities to live a successful, happy, and fulfilling life.

Meet Hannah

By Caleb

I'm very excited for you to meet Hannah. I remember when I first did, and she is amazing. Hannah has a heart that loves and cares for so many people, and she uses that love to nurture and bless those around her. She is caring, supportive, and passionate. She is a constant source of strength to me, and she is always helping to build me up both spiritually and emotionally. Hannah shows such compassion and care to our foster children. She loves them without abandon, knowing they may leave our home, but she gives them all her heart and shows them a deep, lasting, motherly love that will stay with them for years to come. She is an amazing daughter, sister, and aunt, always demonstrating love to all our family.

She does so much for our family and she is so clever to boot! Hannah works as a technical writer and is very technologically savvy. She is quick witted and fun, and she puts together family game nights and loves a good board game (that she usually wins!). I love and cherish Hannah for so many reasons, but most of all, it is her faith in the Lord on the good and hard days of life. She is steadfast and sticks to her morals. She is a woman of conviction, and I greatly respect her judgement because she is grounded in the Lord.

It's impossible to sum up Hannah with a set of words. I am thankful everyday to be her husband, and blessed beyond measure for that. She blesses me daily with her heart. I am so excited to see her share that heart and become a mother.

Caleb is the most kind, compassionate, and considerate man I have ever met. Before meeting Caleb, I never knew what it meant to find your other half ...but now I finally get it. He makes me feel loved and accepted and like I have a place to belong. He is so talented, whether it be playing the guitar, singing, or coming up with new jokes to make me laugh. He is so loving and goes out of his way to help family, friends, and strangers. Caleb is so smart; I am often amazed by his clever wit and his ability to solve complex problems. He completed a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science and has worked full time as a Software Developer for the last six years. He is the go-to when any family or friends have a computer problem – he genuinely just enjoys helping others. I often find him on the floor in the playroom, surrounded by toys and playing in a make-believe world with our two little foster babies. He is just so excited to be a dad one day. He will go from working a full day in the office to coming home and helping me cook and do dishes and then will still do diapers and bedtime stories and kisses goodnight. He loves spending quality time with family for game nights and holidays and vacations. He honors and respects his parents and still calls them every week in-between visits. Caleb is the kind of person that everyone just wants to be around. He exudes a warmth and a genuine compassion for others and I am so honored and blessed to be his wife.

Home Sweet Home

Our home is nestled in the middle of a beautiful sidewalk lined neighborhood. Our local schools, parks, library, and town museum are just a short drive away. We have a big backyard that offers plenty of room to run, play, and explore. Our first desire when choosing our home was to live close to our family. We are blessed to live directly across the street from Hannah's sister, her husband, and our 6-year-old and 4-year-old nieces. We often share meals throughout the week and take long walks together in the evenings to the nearby lake while our nieces ride their bikes. Hannah's parents are only a three-minute drive away. Our home is a new build and is just over 3,000 sq ft – with four big bedrooms, a playroom, and three bathrooms. You will often find us in the kitchen, cooking up one of our famous sugar cream pies or curled up in the hammock on the front porch reading a good book. At Christmas, you will find a big tree adorned with the collected ornaments from our childhoods featured in the large family room. At Halloween, you will find carved pumpkins on the front porch and candy filled bowls ready to be passed out. At Thanksgiving, you will see our entire family gathered around the table to celebrate all the people that we are thankful for.

Wonderful family memories

Caleb's side of our family is large and diverse. He has an older sister that lives with her husband and children in Norway and two older brothers that live with their wives and children nearby. His family from Norway come for visits each summer and Christmas. Caleb's parents live on a beautiful farm, raising and breeding Appaloosa Horses. We travel to visit his parents for long weekends about once a month. Caleb has great relationships with his parents and siblings and places a high value on family time. Caleb is also blessed to have six nieces and two nephews, two of which are adopted internationally from Ethiopia.

Hannah has an older sister that lives just across the street and two younger brothers. Her sister and brother-in-law are also foster parents, and have brought so many wonderful children into our family. Her parents are only a three-minute drive away. She and her sister and mom are very close and love spending time together shopping, going to the movies, talking on the phone, and trying new restaurants. Hannah also has two nieces, whom she adores and loves to spend time with. She also has a large extended family. Her family is very passionate about caring for those with special needs and families affected by childhood cancer. One of her brothers was diagnosed with cancer at the age of 1 and it's made Hannah very compassionate towards those that need extra care and their families.
