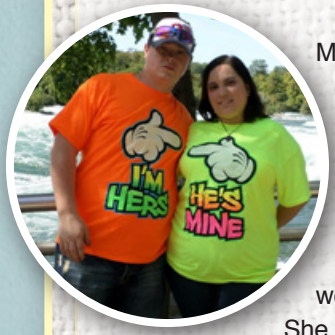
Our Marriage

We are such a great couple, honestly we are! We are two people whose path together is so wonderful because our individual paths that lead us to each other had experienced brokenness before we met. Our journey to each other is much like the words to the chorus from the country song by Rascal Flats, Bless the Broken Road…"this much I know, that God blessed the broken road that lead me straight to you, yes it did."

We are in love and support each other. We love being together. We are fun people, and funny too. We share a common passion of helping others. We adore pets. The two of us come from two very different cultures and we have learned how to respect each other's cultural differences. We are a couple who have a strong faith-based core. While we may have some differing views on some spiritual matters, we agree that serving God is the foundation of our marriage.

From Nick about Marsha



Marsha has made my life rich and complete. I was drawn to her because of her heart toward others. Once I got to know her, I saw that her heart not only had the capabilities of loving those she is related to, but beyond blood and genetics, she would unconditionally love anyone. She has the gift of love. She loves God first, family second, and then others.

Marsha has a passion for anything to do with water. She was raised on an island and had access to the beach every day. So, now that she is living in this landlocked region, she looks for things to do with water; from a simple water fight to enjoying a sun-lit pool and everything in between. This makes her so much fun to be around.

Marsha is a detailed and organized woman that can run circles around many, including myself. The one detail that has eluded her is the opportunity to be a full-time mother. While I have a daughter, she does not live with us. Marsha is a life-giving stepmom to her when we have the opportunities to have her with us. What I can say is this…She is the most amazing mom and a wonderful life partner!

From Marsha about Nick

I have the most wonderful husband. He loves God, family and me. He is servant minded. He is an excellent father to his daughter. He is so supportive of me. We are on a fantastic journey and I get to spend it with my best friend!

Nick has so many wonderful qualities. He is shy, but not hindered by it. In fact, he is noticeably more in tune with what he observes in people than by what others say. He is a great judge of character. Nick aspires to do what is right and has a passion for God's will. He serves as a youth leader at church.

While watching my husband's relationship with his daughter, I am thrilled to see how he loves being a father! He takes it very seriously and his love for her is amazing. Many things go into the character of a good father, and Nick has a few that stand out. He is patient, he has morals and very loving. He leads his daughter by example and is good towards me; thereby setting a HUGE standard of what a husband should be like when it is time for his daughter to find love. He has given her all the tools necessary face life head-on. But more than that, he has made sure that every moment with her is memorable. All of that to say, while many first-time moms have no idea what kind of dad their husbands will be, I on the other hand know exactly what kind of dad he is and will be again!

Our Home

We live in a rural area very close to a Home, our safe place! It all begins there. A place for us (baby included) to rest, rejuvenate, play, grow, eat and cherish one another. Our house has a fenced back yard that soon will be converted into a play area for the baby and its cousins. Our small but mighty town is a beautiful one; Each season has a different festival celebrated by the community. The schools are so amazing that they have been featured in several magazines as A+ school systems in the country.

Our Family

We are so blessed to be surrounded by our extended family. We do understand as a whole, a family that stands together thrives together. No family is perfect. Every family has members that are simply wonderful; and other members who are working on finding their own way in this world. Our families are no different. Wings and halos, have we none, but what we do have are people who are bond unconditionally. Some are in this wonderful network because of their bloodline and others because they have made a choice to be grafted in. When either side of this blended family finds they are weak or broken for a season, they know that the others see their value and offer to be strong for them. We are not afraid of tough love if needed, but know that it is not harsh but rather gentle and loving. So, bring on all the grandparents, parents, aunt and uncles, cousins and friends that have joined the ranks and file of our combined tribe…we are blessed!

Dear Birth Parent,

Our journey to have a family together has brought us to the place where we can hardly believe that another person is considering us to raise their child. What a selfless act of love you are doing! We want to thank you for that consideration. We understand that there is so much that goes into that process. So, let us hopefully give you some peace in making your decision. We make the following promises to you…

- This baby will always be taken care of physically, emotionally and spiritually.
- We realize that from our first embrace of this tiny bundle to the day this baby leaves home to become a unique contributor to the world that lies ahead; we are responsible to equip, support and love this precious one. That love and support must be and will always be unconditional.
- This baby will be aware that we know the gift that we are given to be his/her parents. We will support this child's hopes, dreams and desires. We will share the legacy of love that has been from the beginning…starting with you, your hopes, dreams and desire for this precious little one!
- We are open to a bi-racial adoption as well. We are a bi-racial couple; I am from Puerto Rico and Nick was born here in the USA.

Why adoption

We believe that adoption is a highly personal decision; every couple's choice to adopt comes from their own story; where they have been, where they are now and where they hope to go.

We knew that having even one child would be challenging due to my infertility issues caused by PCOS. However, we knew we were not going to let that stop us. The days of trying to beat the odds that PCOS causes (of becoming pregnant and carry that pregnancy to term) were long and emotional. After eleven miscarriages, adoption became the only option for us to begin our family together. Perhaps, just maybe, you are a part of that journey.

Through adoption we can, and will, eventually fulfill our desire of little feet running through the house and bringing joy and laughter into our home in new ways. Our desire to build a family and teach our child/children to love others is rooted in our commitment God and each other. Adoption is our journey to fulfill that dream.
