About Us

We have been together for thirteen years and what an exciting thirteen years it has been. We both graduated from the same high school, Alex in 2006 and Sarah in 2007, but didn't start dating until after we both graduated. After dating for five years we got engaged and married the following year. We wanted to start a family right away and after many struggles we both decided that we wanted to look into adoption and we are so happy about our decision. We have got to share many life experiences together, most recently the birth of our adopted son, Noah, at the end of 2018; which has been our greatest adventure thus far. He has brought on a whole new meaning of life and excitement for us. In our spare time we enjoy spending time together as a family, whether it is just staying home or going out with our friends and extended family. Aside from raising Noah, Alex also enjoys golf in the warmer months, cards in the cold months and Sarah enjoys home decorating, gardening and watching movies.

In 2019 Sarah became a stay at home mom and Alex works full time in the family camper sales business. We always look forward to the end of the day when we are all home and can eat supper together and talk about our days. Raising our son has been the best experience and we cannot wait to bring another adopted child into our family.

ABOUT Sarah (written by Alex)

When I first met Sarah, I was instantly attracted to the quiet comfort that she exudes. Her character and personality are often mistaken for shy or timid, but she is far from either. Instead, Sarah is one of the most loyal and dependable cheerleaders you can have in life (coincidentally, she was a cheerleader in high school). Sarah has an amazing ability to adapt to every circumstance and overcome adversity. Sarah is as sweet as can be, but she throws a mean game of cornhole and can definitely hang with the competition. I have been blessed to be married to this beautiful woman for six years– she is an amazing cook, loves to decorate and has a compassion that doesn't end. I couldn't ask for a more wonderful, loving, Christian woman to be my wife and she is an equally amazing mother.

ABOUT Alex (written by Sarah)

One of the things that I love most about Alex is that he has such a big heart and will do anything for anyone. He is a man of great faith and puts God first in everything that he does. I often say that Alex is still a kid at heart and at family get-togethers he is always the one playing games with our son, nieces and nephews in the basement while all of the adults are upstairs. He has such a love for kids and I have really enjoyed watching him become a father. One of the things that attracted me most to Alex is his determination and drive to never give up. When Alex does something, he gives it everything that he has and I know that he will teach our kids to do the same.

Our Home

Alex has lived in our home his whole life. We bought our house from Alex's parents after we got married six years ago and that was when Sarah moved in. Our house is a ranch style home with four bedrooms, two bathrooms and a finished basement. We are on a one acre lot in town with plenty of room to run. Just down the street from us is the local park and community center with a playground, basketball court and baseball field. We live in a very safe and friendly town with many young families. Although our town is on the small side, there are a lot of fun things that go on. From the community picnic in July, parish bingo, baseball tournaments and outside movie night every Friday in the summer at the community center, there are many fun, family oriented things to do.

Our Dog

Our dog Carl is a nine year old terrier mix and weighs about 30lbs. We got him from a rescue almost six years ago now and we are so glad that we did. He has such a fun personality and has been great around our son. They are already well on their way to becoming best buds and we know that he will be great with our future children as well.

Sarah's family

Our family and friends have been our biggest support system throughout our adoption journey. We both have very close relationships with our families and they are always there for us when we need advice. Alex's parents, one of his sisters and her family live just across the street from us and his other three siblings and their families don't live too far so we see them often. Sarah's parents live just 15 minutes away with her youngest sister still at home and other sister about two hours away. On Alex's side of the family we have fifteen nieces and nephews and on Sarah's side, Noah is the first grandchild. The excitement level is through the roof about adding another little one.

Many of our friends live in the town that we grew up in and we are constantly getting together for cookouts, campfires or just hanging out and playing board games or cards. All of our friends have families of their own and we love watching our kids play together just like we did when we were growing up. Our friends know how long we waited to become parents and so they are all very excited for us to be growing our family again through adoption.

About Noah

Our adopted son Noah is a sweet little boy who is a peanut in size, but has a huge playful heart. He is almost one and a half years old and loves to listen and dance to music. He spends the majority of his time hanging out with mom during the day and learning the world around him. Noah enjoys swimming, throwing the ball with dad, and listening to his grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins read him stories and books. He gets along great with our dog, Carl, who has really become his constant side kick and companion. We are excited to see Noah have that same friendship and bonding experience with his future brother or sister.

Dear Birthparent(s),

Thank you for taking the time to look through our profile. We hope you were able to get a bit of insight into what our lives are like. Adoption is such a wonderful blessing and gift and we hope that we can share in this experience with you. We admire your strength to pursue this journey of adoption and we promise to raise your child up in a faith filled, steady and caring home with all of the love that we can give.

Why Adoption?

We both have always wanted a big family and when we got married, we were both in agreement that we wanted to start a family right away. After many struggles we knew that God had big plans for us when we decided to adopt. We were both raised in close knit, Christian families and we are so excited to be able to share our traditions and values with our own children. We have so much love for our adopted son and we are excited to be going through this journey again. We cannot wait to bring another adopted child into our home and we promise to give them all our love, guidance and support throughout their lives.
